

Nuremberg hosts Grand Final of the Deutschland Tour 2020

The third edition of the Deutschland Tour leads to Nuremberg. On August 23rd, 2020 Germany's largest cycling festival will celebrate its final in the Bavarian city of Nuremberg where the overall winner of the four-days race will be crowned. In addition to the elite riders, more than 3,000 amateur cyclists are expected to ride on the streets of the Franconia region. The registration for the Jedermann Tour 2020, the sportive event of the Deutschland Tour, is now available at www.deutschland-tour.com.

After having visited half of the German federal states in its first two editions, the Deutschland Tour will make its first stop in Bavaria in 2020. In Nuremberg, the Deutschland Tour comes to a cycling-enthusiastic region where cycling is a core sport discipline with a long tradition. The city hosts a Regional and a Federal Performance Center for cycling.

Claude Rach, Managing Director of the Gesellschaft zur Förderung des Radsports, A.S.O.'s German subsidiary: "With Nuremberg, the Deutschland Tour 2020 celebrates its grand finale in a cycling stronghold that combines tradition with the future. In Nuremberg, the focus is on cycling and talents of tomorrow are encouraged and promoted here. The 23rd of August will be a cycling day for all in Nuremberg - a day that the fans can co-create."

At www.deutschland-tour.com fans can now submit their ideas for the Nuremberg finale of the Deutschland Tour 2020. No matter, if highlights for the pros' course, preferences for the Jedermann Tour routes or scenic features, which will be shown in the world-wide TV broadcast, the fans can participate with their ideas in creating the Deutschland Tour.

Fabian Wegmann, Sports Director of the Deutschland Tour: "The road to Nuremberg offers us the ideal terrain for an exciting finale. The hilly profile in the Franconia region is not too difficult, but nevertheless demanding. We look forward to receiving many insider tips from the fans to keep the race open until the end."

3,000 amateur cyclists expected at the Jedermann Tour in Nuremberg

In addition to the finale of the pros, the Jedermann Tour for amateur cyclists will also take place in Nuremberg. From beginners to ambitious road cyclists, the participants will discover the region around Nuremberg on two routes, completing their tour crossing the same finish line as the pros. The registration is now available at www.deutschland-tour.com.
